FROM THE DESK OF FATHER DAVIS

Although most would agree that the main protagonists in this Sunday's parable are the Prodigal Son and the Merciful Father, let's not be too quick to pass over the important character of the "Elder Brother." Similar to the story of the "workers in the vineyard," within today's parable can be seen the sin of ENVY, certainly a topic to work on during this Lenten season.

As you may recall from your own religious education classes, ENVY is one of the "seven deadly sins." It is a spiritual cancer that has had a profoundly negative impact on our society, our Church, our families, and on our individual lives. The Webster's Dictionary defines envy as the "painful or resentful awareness of an advantage enjoyed by another, joined together with a desire to possess that same advantage." Chaucer describes envy as "sorrow at the prosperity of others." The Elder Brother is emblematic of the sin of envy. He is emblematic of the broken human condition, ever in need of redemption. At one time or another, we have all been touched by the effects of envy. We actually can relate to the Elder Brother more than we know.

In our culture, we are socialized into a life of endless competition, not to mention endless comparisons with others in our families and in the community. We receive countless messages about who is beautiful and who is ugly, who is dumb and who is smart, who is poor and who is rich. The envious person is endlessly tortured by the anxiety that someone else may be more special or fortunate than him or her.

Gossip is one of the tactics of the envious. Gossip has the effect of cutting one's adversaries at the knees. It is the way that some members of the group keep others from rising above the rest. Envy keeps everyone sufficiently lowly so that no one will be seen as better, unique, special, or enjoying a particular advantage.

Envy turns up time and time again in our lives in unexpected situations and we should be aware of its negative impact on our spiritual lives. Like for the Elder Brother and his narrow-mindedness, envy can take hold of us and blind us to acknowledge the blessings and goodness of others. Because envy poisons our spirits (with the Elder Brother we too ask, "what about me?"), it reduces us to competition instead of cooperation. For fear of feeling like failures, envy leads us to belittle and criticize the legitimate successes and accomplishments of others. By comparing ourselves with others, envy leads us away from appreciating our own blessings and graces given by God. Indeed, envy is a spiritual cancer whose pervasive effects have been far-reaching. Its impact is dangerous and spiritually troubling.

What can we do to confront this issue, this sin? A new perspective is surely needed. Saint Thomas Aquinas reminds us that the opposite of envy is love. Love is the source of the soul's spiritual life. Love rejoices in our neighbor's good, while envy grieves over it. God has been amazingly generous with each of us. And God is love! Who among us deserves this grace? None of us! Perhaps in addition to activating a new outlook motivated by love, we might also consider the attitude of gratitude, thankfulness, and appreciation. This perspective would turn self-absorption on its head. We would no longer be living a pity-party, but rather, our grateful hearts would come to rule the day. You can be sure of this, when we all come in from the field, hearing music, and seeing the heavenly feast underway, we will be glad to just be in the line, where there is back-slapping, cheering, and celebration for all, motivated by love and gratitude.

Let's purge our hearts this Lent from the sinful distraction of envy. Embrace the Christian dispositions of love and gratitude instead. Envy hasn't served us well. The bread of love and gratitude awaits to usher us into a new moment of rejoicing in all that God has done for us. Rejoice and give thanks!

DEL ESCRITORIO DEL PADRE DAVIS

Aunque la mayoría estaría de acuerdo en que los protagonistas principales en la parábola de este domingo son el Hijo Pródigo y el Padre Misericordioso, no nos apresuremos a pasar por alto al personaje importante del "Hermano Mayor". Similar a la historia de los "trabajadores de la viña", dentro de la parábola de hoy se puede ver el pecado de la ENVIDIA, ciertamente un tema para trabajar durante esta temporada de Cuaresma.

Como podrán recordar en sus propias clases de educación religiosa, la ENVIDIA es uno de los "siete pecados mortales". Es un cáncer espiritual que ha tenido un impacto profundamente negativo en nuestra sociedad, nuestra Iglesia, nuestras familias y en nuestras vidas individuales. El diccionario de Webster define la envidia como el "conocimiento doloroso o resentido de una ventaja que disfruta otro, unida a un deseo de poseer esa misma ventaja". Chaucer describe la envidia como "tristeza por la prosperidad de los demás". El Hermano Mayor es emblemático del pecado de la envidia. Es emblemático de la condición humana quebrantada, siempre en necesidad de redención. En un momento u otro, todos hemos sido tentados por los efectos de la envidia. En realidad podemos relacionarnos con el Hermano Mayor más de lo que creemos.

En nuestra cultura, somos socializados en una vida de competencia interminable, sin mencionar las comparaciones interminables con otros en nuestras familias y en la comunidad. Recibimos mensajes innumerables sobre quién es lindo y quién es feo, quién es tonto y quién es inteligente, quién es pobre y quién es rico. La persona envidiosa es torturada infinitamente por la ansiedad de que alguien más sea más especial o más afortunado que él o ella.

El chisme es una de las tácticas de los envidiosos. El chisme tiene el efecto de tumbar a los adversarios. Es la forma en que algunos miembros del grupo evitan que otros se eleven por encima del resto. La envidia mantiene a todos lo suficientemente abajo para que nadie sea visto como mejor, único, especial o disfrutando de una ventaja en particular.

La envidia aparece una y otra vez en nuestras vidas en situaciones inesperadas y debemos ser conscientes de su impacto negativo en nuestras vidas espirituales. Al igual que con el Hermano Mayor y su estrechez mental, la envidia puede apoderarse de nosotros y cegarnos para reconocer las bendiciones y la bondad de los demás. Debido a que la envidia envenena nuestros espíritus (con el Hermano Mayor también nos preguntamos "¿qué hay de mí?"), nos reduce a la competencia en lugar de a la cooperación. Por temor a sentirnos fracasados, la envidia nos lleva a menospreciar y criticar los éxitos y logros legítimos de los demás. Al compararnos con otros, la envidia nos aleja de apreciar nuestras bendiciones y gracias dadas por Dios. De hecho, la envidia es un cáncer espiritual cuyos efectos penetrantes han sido de gran alcance. Su impacto es peligroso y espiritualmente preocupante.

¿Qué podemos hacer para enfrentar este problema, este pecado? Seguramente que una perspectiva nueva es necesaria. Santo Tomás de Aquino nos recuerda que lo opuesto a la envidia es el amor. El amor es la fuente de la vida espiritual del alma. El amor se regocija en el bien de nuestro prójimo, mientras que la envidia llora por ello. Dios ha sido increíblemente generoso con cada uno de nosotros. ¡Y Dios es amor! ¿Quién de nosotros merece esta gracia? ¡Ninguno de nosotros! Quizás, además de activar una nueva perspectiva motivada por el amor, también podríamos considerar la actitud de gratitud, agradecimiento y aprecio. Esta perspectiva hiciera girar la auto-absorción de cabeza. Ya no estaríamos viviendo una celebración de las miserias propias, sino que nuestros corazones agradecidos regirían el día. Pueden estar seguro de esto, cuando todos venimos del campo, escuchamos música y vemos el banquete celestial en marcha, estaremos encantados de estar en la fila, donde hay felicitaciones, aplausos y celebración para todos, motivado por el amor y la gratitud.

Purifiquemos nuestros corazones esta Cuaresma de la distracción pecaminosa de la envidia. En su lugar, adoptemos las disposiciones cristianas de amor y gratitud. La envidia no nos ha servido bien. El pan de amor y gratitud nos espera para llevarnos a un momento nuevo de regocijo en todo lo que Dios ha hecho por nosotros. ¡Regocijen y den gracias!
