FROM THE PASTOR'S DESK

My Dear Friends:

Today the liturgy presents us with one of my favorite gospel scenes: the Risen Jesus appearing to the disciples on the shore of the Sea of Galilee. Why was Jesus waiting for the disciples on the shore? St. Gregory the Great offers an explanation:

We may ask why, after Jesus' Resurrection, he stood on the shore to receive the disciples, whereas before he walked on the sea. The sea signifies the world, which is tossed about with various causes of tumults, and the waves for this corruptible life, the shore, by its solidity symbolizes rest. The disciples then, inasmuch as they were still upon the waves of this mortal life, were laboring on the sea; but the Redeemer, having by his Resurrection thrown off the corruption of the flesh, stood upon the shore.

- St. Gregory the Great, Homilies on the Gospel of John

So, after being sent out earlier to "put out into the deep" to labor for the gospel and to find our true calling, now in the light of the resurrection, Christ is calling us to the security of the shore to find rest and to be fed by him. "Come and have breakfast," he tells his disciples. Imagine spending those intimate moments with the Lord evocative of the Holy Eucharist where Christ breaks bread just as he did by that shore. Yet, after being fed, just as at the end of Mass, we are sent back out into those tumultuous waters to go into the deep waters to spread the word and to go deeper into our faith.

The verse from this gospel passage that has resonated the most in my vocation as a priest is found on the lips of St. Peter when he boldly proclaims, "I am going fishing (John 21:3)." I remember reading this gospel in my first weeks of seminary some 29 years ago along with a reflection written by a cardinal whom I had never heard of: Joseph Ratzinger. I remember sitting in the stillness of the oratory of our seminary and reading these lines from the future Pope Benedict XVI:

Rarely in a biblical passage can one detect the Easter joy of Jesus's disciples so directly as in the gospel of Christ's appearance by the [Sea of Galilee]. The freshness of the morning by the sea of Galilee gives us some inkling of the morning joy of the emerging Church in which everything is a matter of departure, beginning, hope. The [sea], with the broad expanse of its waters merging at the horizon with the blue of the sky, becomes an image for the Church's open future in which the distance [between] heaven and earth come into contact: it is with confidence and full of hope that one can dare to set sail on the sea of the time that is to come, because Jesus is standing on the bank and because his word accompanies the journey.

- Ministers of Your Joy, Joseph Cardinal Ratzinger, 1988

I remember how way back then reading those words as a 17-year-old, first year seminarian, I could only dream about the great adventure that was to come. Now this month, I will celebrate my 20th anniversary of my ordination to the priesthood, and those words of St. Peter still resonate, and those dreams are still big: to rescue lost souls from the tumultuous waters of the world, to bring them to the safety of the shore, and to break bread for them just as Jesus did. God willing there will be 20 more years and 20 more after that, so there is plenty of fishing left, plenty of souls to rescue, and plenty of mouths to feed. In the light of the Resurrection, the great adventure of the priesthood, and our faith, is always just beginning...

God bless you all,

DEL ESCRITORIO DEL PARROCO

Mis Queridos Amigos:

¡Hoy la liturgia nos presenta con una de mis escenas evangélicas favoritas: Jesús resucitado apareciendo a los discípulos en la orilla del Mar de Galilea. ¿Por qué estaba Jesús esperando a los discípulos en la orilla? San Gregorio Magno ofrece una explicación:

Podemos preguntarnos por qué, después de la resurrección de Jesús, se paró en la orilla para recibir a los discípulos, mientras que antes caminó sobre el mar. El mar significa el mundo, que está sacudido con diversas causas de tumultos, y las olas para esta vida corruptible, la orilla, por su solidez simboliza el descanso. Los discípulos entonces, en la medida en que todavía estaban sobre las olas de esta vida mortal, estaban trabajando en el mar; pero el Redentor, habiendo sido despojado por su Resurrección de la corrupción de la carne, se paró en la orilla.

- San Gregorio Magno, Homilías sobre el Evangelio de Juan

Entonces, después de ser enviados antes para "salir a las profundidades" para trabajar por el evangelio y encontrar nuestro verdadero llamado, ahora a la luz de la resurrección, Cristo nos está llamando a la seguridad de la orilla para encontrar descanso y ser alimentados por él. "Vengan y desayunen", les dice a sus discípulos. Imagínese pasar esos momentos íntimos con el Señor alusivo de la Sagrada Eucaristía donde Cristo parte el pan tal como lo hizo en esa orilla. Sin embargo, después de ser alimentados, al igual que al final de la Misa, somos enviados de vuelta a esas aguas tumultuosas para ir a las aguas profundas para difundir la palabra y profundizar en nuestra fe.

El versículo de este pasaje evangélico que más ha resonado en mi vocación como sacerdote se encuentra en los labios de San Pedro cuando proclama audazmente: "Voy a pescar (Juan 21:3)". Recuerdo haber leído este evangelio en mis primeras semanas en el seminario hace unos 29 años junto con una reflexión escrita por un cardenal del cual nunca había oído hablar: Joseph Ratzinger. Recuerdo sentarme en la quietud del oratorio de nuestro seminario y leer estas líneas del futuro Papa Benedicto XVI:

Rara vez en un pasaje bíblico se puede detectar el gozo pascual de los discípulos de Jesús tan directamente como en el evangelio de la aparición de Cristo junto al [Mar de Galilea]. La frescura de la mañana junto al mar de Galilea nos da una idea de la alegría matutina de la iglesia emergente en el que todo es una cuestión de partida, de comienzo, de esperanza. El [mar], con la amplia extensión de sus aguas uniéndose en el horizonte con el azul del cielo, se convierte en una imagen para el futuro abierto de la iglesia en el que la distancia [entre] el cielo y la tierra entra en contacto: es con confianza y lleno de esperanza que uno puede atreverse a zarpar en el mar del tiempo que está por venir, porque Jesús está parado en la orilla y porque su palabra acompaña el camino.

- Ministros de vuestra alegría, Joseph Cardenal Ratzinger, 1988

Recuerdo cómo en ese entonces leyendo esas palabras cuando tenía 17 años, en mi primer año como seminarista, solo podía soñar con la gran aventura que estaba por venir. Ahora este mes, celebraré mi 20 aniversario de ordenación al sacerdocio, y esas palabras de San Pedro todavía resuenan, y esos sueños siguen siendo grandes: rescatar a las almas perdidas de las aguas tumultuosas del mundo, llevarlas a la seguridad de la orilla y partir el pan por ellas tal como lo hizo Jesús. Si Dios quiere, habrá 20 años más y 20 más después, por lo que queda mucha pesca, muchas almas que rescatar y muchas bocas que alimentar. A la luz de la Resurrección, la gran aventura del sacerdocio, y nuestra fe, siempre está empezando...

Que Dios los bendiga a todos,
